Top A.J.C. Men Urge U.S. To Give Human Relations Problems Priority

The next National Administration should give "top priority" to resolving of human relations problems as "its most powerful means" of retaining the nation's moral leadership in the world, top leaders of the American Jewish Committee declared at Dallas, Texas.

In a plea directed to the then Presidential candidates, Vice President Nixon and Senator John F. Kennedy, it was urged that, whichever won, there be established a Federal Division of Human Relations to "bring about a pioneering break-through in resolving interreligious and interracial tensions and conflicts."

Those making the plea were Herbert B. Ehrmann, of Boston, president of the Committee; Irving M. Engel, of New York, honorary president; and Frederick F. Greenman, of New York, chairman of the executive board, at the annual meeting of the Committee board, says the New York Times. The meeting was held at the Sheraton Dallas Hotel.

Stressing that the United States can "ill afford future spectacles of religious prejudice as witnessed in the current political campaign," Mr. Ehrmann asserted in an added statement that the Government must provide a "common ground" for human relations efforts throughout the nation. He commented that "until the Supreme Court decision in 1954 on desegregation" there had been almost 100 years of neglect of the interracial problem. He emphasized that "our own failures in group relations affect our status as a world leader."

In special comment Mr. Engel urged that the President-elect call a White House conference of white and Negro community leaders "to delineate areas of agreement and develop extensive educational programs for dealing with tensions."

In special remarks Mr. Greenman declared that human relations problems had grown from local concerns to problems of national importance. He said that there was need to establish "a single place in government" where national efforts in the human relations field could be coordinated.

He declared that the powers of the Federal Government were very broad in the area "and they could be utilized within the Health, Education, and Welfare Department" through the proposed special division to deal with intergroup difficulties. The three said that there were many state and city agencies and voluntary groups that could be "encouraged and coordinated through Federal leadership."

The three agreed that "the time has come for social scientists, with government and foundation aid, to initiate far-reaching research endeavors which would throw light on those factors in American society which impede or foster wholesome intergroup attitudes."

General agreement was also voiced that the goal of improved human relations for all peoples and groups "should be placed before the conscience of the American people, with the United States Government providing the primary initiative," says the New York Times. Willis M. Tate, president of Southern Methodist University, said that "our world of complexity and change" required that the United States muster its best brain power to promote the humanities and the social sciences.

A Protestant educator linked anti-Catholicism in the Presidential campaign to a drive to "discredit liberals" and to promote manipulation "by fear."

Dr. Douglas Jackson, Professor of Sociology of Religion at Southern Methodist University, asserted that the attacks on Senator John F. Kennedy, the Democratic nominee, were less "manifestations of ignorance" than "well-planned and

Israeli Minister Of Religion Led Sephardic Group

Rabbi Jacob Moshe Toledano, Minister of Religious Affairs in the Israeli Cabinet, who died of a heart attack at the age of eighty-one years, was leader of Tel Aviv's Sephardic (Spanish and Portuguese) community. He was confirmed as Minister of Religious Affairs by the Knesset (Parliament) in 1958 after three religious parties had tried to persuade him to refuse the post, says the New York Times. The confirming vote was 60 to two, with 38 absentions.

The action by the Knesset was a victory for Prime Minister David Ben-Gurion. Rabbi Toledano's appointment had resulted from a split in the Cabinet over the involved question of the definition of a Jew.

Two members of the Cabinet resigned at that time over a Cabinet decision to allow any Israeli who declared himself a Jew to be officially registered as one. Religious parties insisted that under Jewish religious laws a person could be considered a Jew only if his mother was Jewish or if he became a convert. The issue was later resolved to the satisfaction of the Orthodox Jews.

Rabbi Toledano was not attached to any party at the time of his appointment. He was taken into the Government by Mr. Ben-Gurion after the National Religious party had defected. The National Religious party has since returned to the coalition, and Rabbi Toledano remained as Minister for Religious Affairs.

He served as chief rabbi and president of the Rabbinical Court of Tel Aviv and Jaffa since 1942. During World War I he was exiled to Corsica because of his French citizenship. He was a member of the Chief Rabbinate at Tangier from 1926 to 1929; served as chief justice of the Rabbinical Court at Cairo from 1929 to 1933, and as chief justice at Alexandria from 1933 to 1939.

An authority on Maimonides, the famous Jewish physician and religious philosopher, Rabbi Toledano served as chairman of the supervisory board commission for the reconstruction of the tomb of Maimonides at Tiberias.

He was the author of "The Canopy," "The Roots Of The Mixvot," "The History of the Jews in Morocco," "The Hands Of Moses", and "The Great Sea." All the books were written in Hebrew. Rabbi Toledano was a collector of rare and ancient books.

A controversy centered about him recently when he secretly married the 25-year-old daughter of a rabbi who immigrated from Morocco. It was Rabbi Toledano's second marriage. His first wife, the former Masuda Hanna Chelouche, died, says the New York Times. In addition to his widow, several children from his first marriage survive him.

Report To U. N. Charges Soviet Blocks Reunion Of Jews Abroad

A report filed with the United Nations by three major Jewish organizations charges the Soviet Union with discriminating against Jewish citizens in its emigration policies for reuniting families separated by war and political turmoil. Documented with quoted statements of Premier Khrushchev and other Kremlin leaders, and with news accounts of cases in which the reunion of families and even of ethnic groups have been authorized, the report stresses that the U.S.S.R. has been "sympathetically disposed" to the practice "except in the case of Soviet Jews."

The 24-page memorandum, prepared by Bnai Brith, the Board of Jewish Deputies of Great Britain, and the South African Board of Jewish Deputies, also surveys emigration policies toward Jews in other East European countries and in North Africa. Among Communist satellite states, the report finds that permission for Jews to emigrate is "more liberal" than in the U.S.S.R. but is "subject to the vagaries of administrative arbitrariness." In the North African countries of Morocco, Tunis, Libya, and Egypt, varying forms of restriction exist that hinder the right of Jews to emigrate voluntarily or to return to their own countries, the report says.

The three Jewish organizations jointly maintain consultative status with the United Nations through the Coordinating Board of Jewish Organizations which submitted the survey to the United Nations Subcommission on Prevention of Discrimination and Protection of Minorities. Philip M. Klutznick, chairman of Bnai Brith's International Council, who made public the study's contents, said: "There is further evidence of the Soviet Union's pattern of anti-Jewish discrimination that openly violates the U.S.S.R.'s own constitutional guarantees of equality among its multiple nationalities. The tragedy of the Soviet Jew is that he is denied the right to live as a Jew in his homeland and denied the right to

U. S. Grant Backs Study Of "Gold Mine" Of Language Resources

An American nation-wide study of ethnic groups to determine how they can broaden America's knowledge of non-English languages, has been initiated by Dr. Joshua Fishman, dean of Yeshiva University's Graduate School of Education, in New York, it was announced by Dr. Samuel Belkin, president of the University. The two-year study is supported by a $125,615 grant from the U.S. Office of Education, he said. The grant had been made to the University of Pennsylvania, where, until September 1, Dr. Fishman served as Associate Professor of Human Relations and Psychology, and Director of Research of the Albert Greenfield Center for Human Relations. It was subcontracted to Yeshiva University when Dr. Fishman assumed his duties as dean of the Graduate School of Education this fall.

According to Dr. Fishman, the study has been undertaken "because a significantly greater knowledge of foreign languages is needed in this country in order to strengthen our cultural, business, and diplomatic relations with the rest of the world. We have almost forgotten that Americans of foreign birth and parentage constitute a veritable gold mine of language skills, and there is concern among government and education authorities that this resource be recognized, preserved, and further developed." Among many indications of the scope of this resource, he said, "are the nearly 800 foreign language newspapers and other periodicals, with a readership of more than six million, being published in this country, and the more than 880 American radio stations, and several television stations, broadcasting today in several dozen non-English languages."

Dr. Fishman, a social psychologist, said that the study will be followed by the publication of a book-length report, which will include, in addition to the findings, recommendations for further study and for encouraging greater use of the ethnic group resources. "Both government and education spokesmen," he said, "have in recent years underscored the dearth of foreign language proficiency in the American population and the need for increased competence in this respect. It is anomalous that a country that has been a haven for immigrants for several centuries should be faced with a scarcity of individuals proficient in the various languages of the world.

"The foreign language knowledge and creativity of America's numerous ethnic groups have largely been overlooked in this connection. A utilization and furtherance of this resource could redound to the benefit of America's ideological, strategic, commercial, and cultural relations. Many projects are currently under way that are designed to increase and improve instruction of languages which Americans do not know. But little, if anything, is being done to preserve the non-English language facility that millions of Americans have as part of their own family traditions."

During their two-year effort, Dr. Fishman and his aides will seek information concerning the efforts of the ethnic groups to impart knowledge of their native languages to their children and to others. They will survey all media used to disseminate the languages, including the press, radio, schools, organizations, and the family, and will appraise their effectiveness. The opinions of ethnic group leaders concerning the present and future status of their language will be sought. An evaluation will be made of the social and psychological contexts of bilingualism, biculturalism, and language loyalty, as observed on field assignments in communities where non-English languages are spoken. A key segment of the project will be an effort to determine the extent to which foreign language teachers in American high schools and colleges are in touch with, and utilize, the foreign language resources of the American ethnic groups and communities whose languages they teach. "We expect that the study will suggest guidelines for encouraging language teachers to utilize the resources of American ethnic communities across the country as a means of supplementing their classroom work," Dr. Fishman stated.

well-financed assaults" by a well-informed and organized leadership.

The sociologist declared that "many of the Protestants who are currently attacking Mr. Kennedy because he is a Roman Catholic have histories deserving close scrutiny." Although not identifying them by name, Dr. Jackson said that "many of them" had previously attacked "the National Council of Churches as well as individual Methodists, Baptists, Presbyterians, and Episcopal clergymen."

Dr. Jackson took part in a panel discussion on religious tensions in the election with members of the Catholic and Jewish faith. The panel was part of the American Jewish Committee's executive board meeting at the Sheraton-Dallas Hotel.

Dr. Jackson said that many of those who had attacked Mr. Kennedy "have also been outspoken opponents of integration and have not hesitated to challenge the competency and the 'Americanism' of the members of the Supreme Court," says the New York Times. He warned that currently "religious conflict takes the form of anti-Catholicism," adding that "tomorrow it may don another guise."

Another panelist was Thomas C. Unis, Catholic lay leader and chairman of the Dallas Chapter of the National Conference of Christians and Jews. Mr. Unis stressed that the religious issue had no validity in the Presidential campaign.

He said that Catholics in high public office had served the nation "without church coercion or interference."

Another participant was Rabbi Leonard Zion, acting director of the inter-religious affairs division of the American Jewish Committee. He said that Americans "must make every effort to keep legitimate controversy from spilling over into religious bigotry, suspicion, and bitterness."

Frederick F. Greenman, a New York lawyer, and chairman of the executive board, contended that bloc voting made up of "controlled units of organized bodies" did not exist in American elections.

On the basis of a series of studies and opinion polls, says the New York Times. Mr. Greenman labeled as a "political myth" the belief that "invisible governments" controlled and manipulated the votes of their respective groups.

Desegregation tensions in the South have had "no serious adverse effect" on relations between Christians and Jews, according to a two-year study which examined the attitudes of the Jewish population in Memphis and Miami. It found a "large flow" of social contact between Christians and Jews.

The major findings of the survey were reported to the American Jewish Committee's national executive board, its top policy and operations planning body, at the Dallas Meeting. Three hundred members, representing every section of the U.S. were there for five days. The Committee, whose national headquarters is its Institute of Human Relations in New York, is a human-relations agency combating bigotry and discrimination.

The report stressed that both the desegregation tensions, which have created a climate of conflict in many Southern communities, and the growing tendency toward religious sectarianism and increased activities under religious auspices, had not affected social contact between Christians and Jews.

In Memphis, the study found, "more than three-quarters of the sample interviewed said that there has been extensive socializing between Christians and Jews, with each visiting the others' homes." More than half reported participation in social gatherings of Christian and Jewish couples.

In Miami, the study continued, "two-thirds of the people interviewed reported extensive socializing between Christians and Jews in each other's homes in the course of the past year", says the New York Times. Most frequently mentioned as meeting grounds between the two groups were business, neighborhood relations, work in organizational activities connected with children.

The Jewish population of Memphis is 8,000 out of 500,000. In Miami, the Jewish population is estimated at 90,000 out of 900,000. Apart from relationships between Christians and Jews, the studies presented a general profile of Jews in Memphis and Miami.

Eighty per cent of the Jewish population of Memphis, the study showed, "is American born and 70 per cent in Miami were born in this country." In Miami, more than half of those interviewed had completed college and four out of five had finished high school. In Memphis, 40 per cent of the men interviewed had completed college or post-graduate training.

In responding to a question on what they considered the essentials of Judaism, 68 per cent in Miami and 66 per cent in Memphis listed a "knowledge of the fundamentals of Judaism." In both communities 70 per cent said that Judaism required "support of humanitarian causes." More than half of the Jewish population of both cities maintained that Jews should marry within the Jewish faith.

Sixty per cent of the respondents in both Memphis and Miami felt that the promotion "of general civic improvement" was an important role for Jews. Sixty-three per cent of the Jews in Miami were of the opinion that a major element of Judaism was "to work for equality for all minority groups," says the New York Times, while in Memphis, a little less than half of this percentage held this belief about Judaism.

REPORT TO U. N.

emigrate where he would be free to do so."

Mr. Klutznick said the study was submitted to the United Nations as documentation of the Soviet Union's disregard for a cardinal principle in the U.N.'s Universal Declaration of Human Rights, in a section of Article 13 of the Declaration which affirms that "everyone has the right to leave any country, including his own, and return to his country." The study observes that Soviet policy makes a distinction between an absolute right to leave, which the Soviets reject, and a specific right for the purpose of reuniting dispersed families. It then makes a further distinction by denying Jews the specific right granted other Soviet citizens.

This "inconsistency . . . creates an obvious embarrassment" for the Soviet Union which it seeks to hide by denying that Soviet Jews want to emigrate, the report declares. It quotes Khrushchev at a July 8 press conference in Vienna to the effect that the Soviet Ministry of Foreign Affairs had had "no requests of (Jews) wishing to go to Israel." In contradiction to Khrushchev's statement, the report notes:

An August 8 statement to the Israel Knesset (Parliament) by Foreign Minister Golda Meir that 9,236 members of Jewish families in the U.S.S.R. have asked relatives in Israel to furnish documents to support emigration applications. The Soviet Red Cross, replying to inquiries and petitions for assistance from Israelis seeking passports for relatives in the Soviet Union, invariably answers that U.S.S.R. authorities find no adequate basis for granting such exit permits. "That the Soviet government is aware that many more Jews desire to leave to go to Israel is indirectly confirmed by the intense and vitriolic campaign conducted in the Soviet press and transparently aimed at discouraging the aspirations of Soviet Jews to leave for Israel," the report asserts. In its survey of other Iron Curtain countries, the study finds "the most restrictive" measures in nations where "the problem of torn families is greatest."

MONTREAL MEETINGS

(Additional Montreal Meetings on Page Eleven)

● Benjamin Robinson, Q.C., 36 Forden Crescent, was one of three Superior Court judges, appointed in the Montreal District; with Philippe Lamarre, Q.C.; and G. Beverly Puddicombe, Q.C. Mr. Robinson, honorary president of the Jewish Immigrant Aid Services, settled in Montreal shortly after his graduation from Harvard University Law School when he resided in the United States. He became secretary of J.I.A.S. and was elected national president in the late 1920's and continued in that position until the mid-1940's. In the early years the organization dealt with individual immigration problems. Mass immigration followed the last war. This demanded frequent meetings with the late Prime Minister Mackenzie King, officials of the Department of Immigration, and other governmental bodies regarding the Rumanian Refugees Project; the orphans' projects; reception and facilitating of movement of refugees from Hitlerite Germany who were enroute to New Zealand and Australia. Mr. Robinson was chairman of the orphans' project in Montreal. Mrs. Robinson worked for it through the National Council of Jewish Women. TORONTO MARRIAGES

SIEGEL-TRAGER

The marriage of Miss Marilynn Trager, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Trager, 884 Avenue Road, to Albert Siegel, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Siegel, 154 Palmerston Avenue, was solemnized at five o'clock, on October 23, at Beth Tzedec Synagogue, with Rabbi Stuart E. Rosenberg officiating. The bride was given in marriage by her parents. She wore a period gown of white faille. It had a bodice and skirt which ended in a chapel train, appliqued with Guipure lace, sprinkled with seed-pearl-beads and sequins. Her fingertip illusion veil was gathered to a jewelled crown; and she carried a white prayer book with a purple orchid and stephanotis. Miss Lynda Trager was maid of honour for her sister, in a pumpkin-coloured, delustred satin gown, fashioned with a fitted bodice; scooped neckline; and bouffant skirt; with a matching pill-box hat. She carried a cascade bouquet of Johanna Hill roses. Ellen Turk was the flower girl, in a white and blue, silk organza dress, and carried a miniature bouquet of Johanna Hill roses. George Siegel, brother of the groom, was best man. The ushers were: Dr. Morton Cooper, Jack Saltzman, Arnold Polan, Shire Swartz, Samuel Sniderman, Harry Turk, Larry Snitman, Michael Sieger, Robert Ross, and Leon Emer. Three hundred and forty-four guests were received at a dinner at the Synagogue. Mrs. Trager, mother of the bride, wore a champagne-coloured satin gown which had an embroidered bodice; and bouffant skirt; and a burnt-orange-coloured orchid was her corsage. Mrs. Siegel, mother of the groom, wore a champagne-coloured, sheer sheath; and an orchid corsage. Mr. and Mrs. Albert Siegel spent their wedding trip at the Nevele Country Club, in Ellenville, N. Y. The bride went away in a red print ensemble, with a matching hat; brown seal jacket and trimmed with mink and had a brown-toned orchid corsage. They will reside at 31 Elway Court. Here for the wedding were: Mr. and Mrs. Irving Weiss, and Sheila and Stephen; and Mr. and Mrs. Seymour Freedman, and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Wayne, and son, Kenneth; all of Montreal, Que.; Mr. and Mrs. I. Kamness, and Neil, of New York; Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Levine, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Gusner, and Pamela, of Hamilton, Ont.; Mr. and Mrs. G. Coppell, of St. Catharines, Ont.; Mr. and Mrs. M. Rosenberg, of Detroit, Mich.; Mr. and Mrs. N. Coppell, Mr. and Mrs. S. Coppell, and C. Margolius; all of Galt, Ont.

TORONTO MARRIAGES

BEILES-SHOIHET

The marriage of Miss Renee Shoihet, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur R. Shoihet, 27 Duncannon Drive, to Norman Beiles, son of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Beiles, of Ottawa, Ont., was solemnized on Thursday, October 20, at half-past six o'clock, at Shaarei Shomayim Synagogue, by Rabbi Walter S. Wurzburger, assisted by Cantor Nathan Adler. The bride was given in marriage by her father. Her gown of white peau de soie was fashioned with a fitted bodice appliqued with white and silver-coloured roses. The sleeves were long; and the bell-shaped skirt had a loose, embroidered panel which swept to a train. A coronet of flowers held her illusion veil; and she carried a bouquet of stephanotis and orchids. Mrs. David Marcus, sister of the groom, was matron of honour. Miss Janice Swadron, cousin of the bride, was maid of honour. Their gowns were of orchid-coloured peau de soie; with long, bouffant skirts. Their hats were of that shade; and they carried bouquets of pink roses. Lisa Marcus, niece of the groom, was the flower girl. Her dress was of white organdy over orchid-coloured taffeta; and she had a flowered hat; and carried a basket of rose petals, which she scattered down the centre aisle. Herbert Beiles, brother of the groom, was the best man. The ushers were: Earl Shoihet, brother of the bride; Neil Caplan, cousin of the bride; Dr. Gerald Greenbaum, Robert Prezler, Samuel Klaman, and Allan Nayman. Standards of white chrysanthemums and carnations decorated the altar; and miniature rose trees marked each row of the centre aisle. The wedding music was provided by Sam Silver and his orchestra. At a dinner at the Synagogue, two hundred twenty guests were received. Mrs. Shoihet, mother of the bride, wore a mauve, embroidered brocade gown which had a long sheath skirt, with a folded overskirt; a scooped neckline; and three-quarter-length sleeves; also a mauve hat. Mrs. Beiles, mother of the groom, was attired in a mauve, brocaded satin evening gown; with a sheath skirt draped to a bustle in back; and had a matching hat; Mrs. H. L. Caplan, 27 Gloucester Grove, grandmother of the bride, wore a long; mauve, lace gown; with elbow-length sleeves; and a scooped neckline; with a matching hat. Each had a mauve orchid wrist bouquet. Mr. and Mrs. Norman Beiles spent their wedding trip in Acapulco, and Mexico City, Mexico. The bride travelled in mauve suit. They are residing at 2550 Bathurst Street. Here for the wedding were: Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Beiles, parents of the groom; Mr. and Mrs. M. Kizell, Mrs. L. Simon, Mrs. Thelma Ritt, Mr. and Mrs. Max Kizell, Mr. and Mrs. Leo Abrams, Mrs. Samuel Kizell, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Florence, Mr. and Mrs. I. Litvack, Mrs. L. Laporter, Harry Kizell, Mr. and Mrs. M. Drazen, Mr. and Mrs. Bert Konig, Mr. and Mrs. M. Zbar, Mr. and Mrs. A. Bromberg, Mr. and Mrs. Kappeller, Mrs. M. Shachter, Mrs. Rachael Hochman, Mr. and Mrs. A. Lithwick, Mr. and Mrs. M. Wolfson, Mr. and Mrs. D. Baker, Mr. and Mrs. I. Shore, Mr. and Mrs. E. Marks, Mr. and Mrs. M. Lang, Mrs. L. Rachlin, Mr. and Mrs. B. Bean, Miss Sybil Rachlin, Miss Tybie Drazen, Mrs. N. Zelikovitz, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Shoihet, and son David; all of Ottawa, Ont. Also present were: Mr. and Mrs. D. Kizell, and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Kizell, of Kemptville, Ont.; Mr. and Mrs. Aaron Kizell, Ray Kizell, of Kingston, Ont.; Mr. and Mrs. R. Kizell, and Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Kizell, of North Bay, Ont.; Dr. and Mrs. David Marks, and Phillip and Lisa, Mr. and Mrs. M. Cohen, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Goren, all of Montreal, Que.; Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Feinberg, Mr. and Mrs. George Wenocker, Mr. and Mrs. I. Feinberg, Mrs. David Schrage, all of Detroit, Mich.; and Mr. and Mrs. M. Norris, of New York.

Over $40,000 Raised In N. Y. At Private Casals Concert

More than $40,000 was raised by the America-Israel Cultural Foundation to provide the funds for the 1961 Pablo Casals international violoncello competition in Israel, when Pablo Casals broke a 24-year, self-imposed exile to give a benefit concert in New York at the home of Mr. and Mrs. David Rockefeller. The internationally famed 'cellist had not performed in the United States since 1936, with the exception of an appearance at the United Nations marking its tenth anniversary.

Among the hundred persons present at the private concert in the Rockfeller home were: Israel's Minister for Foreign Affairs, Golda Meir; Ambassador Michael Comay, Israel's Permanent Representative to the United Nations, and Mrs. Comay; Mrs. Avraham Harman, wife of Israel's Ambassador to the United States; Ambassador Egidio Ortona, Italy's Permanent Representative to the U. N.; Ambassador and Mrs. Arnaud Berard, France's Permanent Representative to the U.N.; and Samuel Rubin, president of the America-Israel Cultural Foundation.

The musical program performed included the Mendelssohn Trio in D-Minor, and the Schubert Quintet in C-Major ('cello), Opus 163. The Mendelssohn Trio was performed by Mieczylaw Horszowski, piano; Alexander Schneider, violin; and Maestro Casals, 'cello. The Schubert Quintet was played by Maestro Casals and the Budapest String Quartet. In agreeing to perform in New York at this musicale Maestro Casals said that he was anxious to hold the 1961 Pablo Casals International violoncello competition because of his eagerness to restore the 'cello to its rightful place among the accepted solo instruments of the day.

Ten prizes will be available for distribution among the contestants at the competition in Israel which is expected to attract 60-80 cellists. Maestro Casals will be the chairman of the board of judges for the competition.

Young career men and women should be sure that good grooming is included in the success program. Water is an important ingredient, a daily shower; tooth brushing after eating; and regular shampooing of the hair. Lots of water to drink is important to health.

Glaucoma is a common cause of blindness, especially among people over age forty, of whom two per cent have this eye disease. Many of the cases are unsuspected. Periodic eye examinations by a medical eye doctor are advisable from middle age.

ORANGE CHIFFON CAKE

two and one-quarter cups cake flour
one-half cup oil
one-half teaspoon almond extract
one-half teaspoon salt
one-half teaspoon cream of tartar
one and one-half cups sugar
one tablespoon baking powder
one tablespoon orange rind
three-quarters cup orange juice

Beat egg whites together with cream of tartar until stiff. Add one-half cup of sugar and beat. In a smaller bowl beat egg yolks. Add one cup sugar, oil, and flour which has been sifted with the salt and baking powder. Alternate the flour mixture with the orange juice to the egg yolk mixture. Add grated orange rind and almond extract. Gently fold in the stiff egg whites. Pour the mixture into an ungreased, large tube pan, and bake at 325 degrees for one hour. When done, invert on a rack to cool. If desired, you may dress up the cake with this topping: Mix together one cup icing sugar and enough orange juice to form a soft consistency. Spread this over top of the cake and let it run down the sides.

Mrs. L. Train,
460 Rosslawn Avenue, Toronto.

TUNA CASSEROLE DISH

Sprinkle some crushed corn flakes over the mixture, enough to cover the top. Drop a few dabs of butter over this, about two inches apart. Bake at 350 degrees for one hour. Serve hot or cold. Dehydrated corn or string beans may be added to the tuna mixture if desired.

Canadian Jewish Congress Statement On The Exposure Of Nazi Activities In Canada

The Central Region of the Canadian Jewish Congress released a statement on the exposure of Nazism in Canada under the signatures of Monroe Abbey, Q.C., chairman of the National Executive of Congress; and of Sydney M. Harris, chairman of the National Joint Public Relations Committee, which read as follows:

"No one who saw the C.B.C. television broadcast last week reporting the existence of self-styled Nazi units in this country can help but be disquieted by what was revealed. We are gratified that the vast majority of Canadians share a feeling of revulsion provoked by what was publicly revealed in the broadcast. Some viewers may feel some doubt as to whether the broadcast served a beneficial purpose. This is not a matter however for our present concern, which is with the implication of the facts reported.

"The bloodshed and sacrifice of six years of World War II which left hardly any Canadian family untouched was not expended to promote an imported doctrine that cost such a tragic price to take root in Canada.

"We believe that incitement to violence by fomenting racial hatred should be outlawed and in the past we have made representation to Parliament to this end, and — fully cognizant of the need to preserve freedom of speech and communication — we will continue our efforts towards this goal.

"We know that the law enforcement agencies are aware of Fascist activities that are being promoted in our midst. Recent reports reinforce the evidence that such activity is an aspect of a world-wide movement rather than a purely local manifestation. We will, moreover, continue to press for the full enforcement of the law on any racist groups that engage in any violation of our legal code.

"Fascist activity of whatever dimension and wherever promoted is of course a serious matter and a potential threat. While the activity revealed constitutes no imminent threat to Canada and its institutions, nevertheless it would be mischievous to underestimate its significance or ignore its existence.

"Nor do we feel that this is an issue that is of concern solely or even primarily to the Jewish community. The lesson of recent history — if it has taught anything — is that Faciem and racism are everyone's enemy. That this is so is clear from the statements issued by public leaders and expressed in responsible editorial comment.

"Complacency is an attitude we cannot afford. We will continue to be vigilant for every manifestation of this poison in our midst. To attain our goal — the security and survival of the Jewish community and the strengthening of Canadian democratic institutions — we recognize our public responsibility to fight prejudice, racism and discrimination and to this end we pledge our entire resources and shall continue to seek the cooperation of all agencies, both governmental and private."

The Council of Christians and Jews wrote to the Hon. Jean Lesage, Premier of Quebec, expressing gratitude for "prompt action in ordering an investigation of the activities of these people with a view to finding effective measures to curb their baneful efforts. We share the view expressed in a recent editorial of the Montreal Star that if present legislation is found inadequate to curb the activities of these people, new measures should be considered to effect this purpose." The Council also wrote to the Minister of Justice, urging that the Department of Justice "make the closest possible investigation of the activities of these people with a view to taking whatever recourse our law affords in curbing their baneful efforts which seek to undermine the fundamentals of our democratic way of life."

Several French papers also had comments on the exposure of the Nazi group. "La Presse" sent one of its reporters to Sorel to interview Bellefeuille. "Le Petit Journal" interviewed Arcand on the matter, who expressed his "disappointment" concerning Bellefeuille, as he did not have "the courage to stick to his beliefs." A monthly paper, "Point de Vues" published an editorial note, in which it "condemned" the CBC for carrying the program. "La Patrie" had an editorial emphasizing that "all such activities should be denounced, the real remedy, however, is an intelligent counter-propaganda which aims at the education and the information of the public".

The Peterborough Examiner: "In Formalin":

"On Sunday, the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation drew attention to a new Nazi-party movement in North America; fortunately it is small and, at the moment, inconsequential. Some of the ideas put forward by the members of the movement will sicken Canadians; all of them will draw attention to the distorted imbalance of the minds of people who can subscribe to and support such beliefs. It is interesting and commendable of the C.B.C. to have these views discussed, after they were expressed, by a psychiatrist. Understanding why such views are held is the best way to defeat them and stop them from spreading. Mental health, we must remember, is not merely a matter of being free from inhibiting anxieties and frustration, but also of being free from destructive hatred.

"An immediate response has been a call for the suppression of this party, certainly its eradication is desirable, but suppression would give it the kind of persecution it would feed upon. The best thing for the country would be to have this petty and distasteful movement on show, as tumours and oddities are shown so that they can be examined and learned from. Put it with the monsters and the monstrosities in our social zoo, in this kind of captivity it would soon be an object of ridicule rather than fear."

The Toronto "Star": "CBS Casts Light on Nazis":

"The CBC is drawing criticism for presenting Canadian and American Nazi leaders on a television program. We believe the criticism is almost entirely unwarranted.

"These racist crackpots exist in our free society and even manage to recruit a few followers. That is a fact which should be reported, not ignored or suppressed.

"Of course, the manner of the reporting is crucial, but here again it is difficult to fault the CBC. Its approach was clinical, not promotional. After the Nazis told of their sick dreams of power, the program offered explanatory comment from a rabbi and a psychiatrist.

"The likes of Andre Bellefeuille, the Canadian 'fuehrer', will bear watching. The moment they pass from subversive words to illegal acts will be the time for the police to act. Spokesmen of German and Hungarian Canadians have complained that the program left a false impression of Nazi sympathy among their ethnic groups. If so, it is an impression that they will have ample means to correct through public communications media. Indeed, we doubt that correction is necessary.

"Most Canadians seem to be well aware that totalitarian beliefs find little favor among the newcomers in our midst."

The Toronto "Telegram": "Crackpot Slaverings" (column by Frank Tumpane:

"The danger in airing the views of a pipsqueak like Andrew Bellefeuille, the vest-pocket fuehrer of Sorel, Que., is not that he will gain converts but that an inordinate importance will attach to him and what he says.

"No evidence was adduced in the CBC television interview with Bellefueille or in subsequent newspaper interviews, that any substantial fascist movement exists in Canada.

"While it is wise to expose a menace if one exists, it does not seem to me to serve any useful purpose to broadcast the slaverings of every crackpot who agrees to air time.

"Bellefeuille says he is the leader of the National Socialist Party of Canada, and that he has 1,500 to 2,000 members, wearing tri-color armbands, ready 'to move when the time is ready.' I don't believe it . . .

"If Bellefeuille had a substantial group and that group were, for example, influencing the policy of any government in Canada, an expose would certainly be called for and would serve some good end.

"The crackpot views of a person who isn't even taken seriously in his home town hardly, however, warrant the dignity of national coverage.

"Anytime anybody in Toronto wants confirmation that crackpotism and hatred directed against race or religion exists in Canada, he need not go to Sorel, Que. We have our own race and religion haters right here on our own home ground. Hate sheets, directed against Jews, Negroes or Catholics, are printed in Canada and distributed here, as well as imported from the United States.

"However, I can find no evidence that the lunatic fringe is growing; the reverse, I believe, is true. Intolerance has become unfashionable and its proponents now stalks shame-faced while before they grimaced with awful ardor. That isn't a sound reason for tolerance, of course, the sound reason is brotherly love. For those who cannot yet find it in their hearts to love their neighbor, however, it will have to suffice.

"Bellefeuille, the self-proclaimed Canadian Nazi, says he would move to deprive Jews and Negroes of certain of their rights; and you'll notice I make no attempt to rebut what he says. Long ago, I learned it is futile to argue with fanatical hate-mongers on any rational basis. Those who hate members of other races or religions are eaten by an inner acid that corrodes their minds.

"Those impressed by them have already been attacked by the same virus; they are so immersed in the venom of their own bitterness, that they swallow lies gladly.

"This is a free country and the hate-mongers have a democratic right to spread lies and malice about the members of the Jewish religion or any other religion. They even have a legal right to hate Jews or the members of any other religion, or to hate Negroes or the members of any other race.

"But the law stops them short of distilling their venom into action. It's one thing to talk of depriving Jews or Negroes of their rights; it's quite another to try to do it.

"Let Bellefeuille stop talking and start acting and see what happens to him.

"I don't believe persons like him should be treated like jokes for I have never been able to see anything funny in stark hatred. Nevertheless, the maunderings of small-time crackpots should not be treated as if they were portents of imminent havoc.

"The woodwork is crawling with race and religion haters; and it seems to me to be wrong to confer the benefit of publicity on one of them, just because he happens to give himself a title and invents an arm-band for his sleeve."

On November 2, the CBM T.V. Station in Montreal telecast a further interview with Andre de Bellefeuille during which he stated that he "disbanded" his group and that he withdraws from "politics". He also said that he "apologizes to the Jewish Community of Canada" and that his involvement in Nazi activities was "the biggest mistake of his life" and that he "wishes to come back to his job from which he was suspended." The telecast also indicated that the local population of Sorel, Quebec; expressed its indignation at Bellefeuille and his group by heckling his followers, etc. One of his "storm troopers", who was an honor guard of the local parish, was dismissed.

While in Ottawa, Saul Hayes, the Executive Vice-President of Congress, attempted to see the Minister of Justice, but his Cabinet meetings and conferences kept him away from his office throughout the day. The Secretary of the Minister transmitted a message the Minister left for Mr. Hayes on the Bellefeuille case and the undertaking that he would call. The Minister is fully aware of Jewish interests and has promised his full support.

Hyman Zalkind, 1855 Mount Royal Boulevard, Montreal, is chairman of the building committee of the Adath Jeshurun Hedrath Congregation, of which Rabbi Israel L. Rosenbaum is the leader. Mr. Zalkind will lay the cornerstone of the new building on Sunday, November 20, at 3.30 p.m.. In memory of his late wife, Mr. Zalkind endowed the Synagogue's Gertrude Zalkind Auditorium. On Sunday evening, November 20, at 8.30 p.m., there will be a Banquet in the Gertrude Zalkind Auditorium to celebrate the dedication of the new building. Dr. Henry Raphael Gold, Rabbi, and sociologist, of New York, will be the guest speaker.
